Graphic narrative in public heritage and beyond

Archaeology is a visual science.

In the field and in the lab, we are always observing.

It's how we record much of our excavation, survey and analytical data.

Interpretations based on what we observe...

... underpin how we understand the sites we work at...

... the stratigraphy we dig through...

... and the artefacts we recover.

In archaeology, the past is revealed as much through what we see as what we find.
